Air Products supplies total gas solutions to the offshore industry globally. Our offshore business began in Europe in the early 1970s with the opening of our first specialist offshore depot in Aberdeen to serve the UK North Sea. In the decades that followed, we have expanded globally to serve offshore markets across Europe, America, Asia and the Middle East and have established hubs in each region.

Providing peace of mind, quality products of consistent and traceable standards.

Backed up with more than 40 years of expertise and market knowledge, our global offerings, comprising gases such as nitrogen, helium and diving mixtures, bring you improved quality and safety. Today, customers worldwide use Air Products' offshore technology for exploration, saturation diving, fabrication, production and subsea inspection, repair and maintenance (IRM). Commercial divers rely on the purity and accuracy of our diving mixtures, while subsea welders benefit from our reliable source of quality gases. Our specialty gases are applied in laboratory analysis and calibration processes

In the offshore industry, customers expect on-time delivery and reliable service, especially when faced with an emergency. Equally important is the provision of excellent follow-up services and documentation. Many customers have been with us for decades because they know our 24x7 services provide them with the complete peace of mind they have come to expect from Air Products. Our after-sales services include providing certificates, equipment tracking and reconciliation reports on a timely basis.
